WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION:

This workshop will provide in-depth information on selected topics in facilitated communication (FC). The topics covered in this workshop will include literacy, developing independence for FC users, developing conversational skills of FC users, research on FC, methods of teaching authorship skills to FC users, and the use of technology for FC users. This workshop will be useful for people who have experience with FC and wish to advance their knowledge and skills with the method.

Participants will be able to:

- Describe the connections between reading, writing, and FC.
- Identify strategies for expanding the literacy skills of individuals who use FC.
- Identify strategies for assisting FC users in developing independent communication skills.
- Design a plan to teach conversational skills for individuals they work with.
- Select appropriate technology options for individuals they are working with.
- Describe the research on FC and methods of comparing and interpreting different research studies on FC.
- Identify strategies for teaching authorship skills to FC users.

WORKSHOP INSTRUCTOR: PASCAL CHENG, M.Ed., C.A.S.

Pascal Cheng has a M.Ed. and a C.A.S. in Special Education from the University of Vermont. He is currently an educational and communication specialist for Howard Center Services in Burlington, Vermont, providing training and technical assistance for communication and literacy in both school and community settings.
