STUDENT PERSONALIZATION

Personal Plans for Progress and Student-Led Conferences

DESCRIPTION:

High school research shows that students who are goal driven will be more engaged in their own learning. This workshop will help school teams of administrators, teachers, and students utilize and implement processes, including Personal Plans for Progress and Student-Led Conferences, to encourage students to be goal driven. Personal Plans for Progress provide the framework for each student's academic plan, college planning, and parent involvement. A Student-Led Conference involves articulating reflections of past learning and experiences, and verbalizing their commitment to concrete "action plans" for the future. Together, these two processes can effectively move student's plans from paper to actualization. Participants will leave with an action plan to guide the development of these processes in their schools.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND:

School administrators, teachers, and students are encouraged to attend, with preference given to school-based teams.
